TEST 07

Read the following text and answer the questions.

Chamith, Chinthaka and Vikum are brothers. Chamith was the eldest and Vikum was the youngest of the family. All of them attend the village school 2km away from their house. Last Monday three brothers stepped towards the village school with their friends. In the early weather was bit unkind. The sky was overcast. The cold wind blew fast carrying the dry leaves. All of them knew that it was going to rain. As they entered the school, rain fell. They ran to their respective classrooms in clammy clothes. Dropping from students' wet clothes made the floor of the classroom slippery. The torrential rain and the wind soaked the desks and chairs of all the classrooms except Vikum's. His classroom was covered with reed mats. The students could neither sit nor keep their books. So Chamith's classmates started running here and there.

Noise made by the torrential rain and the bawl of students echoed in the school premises. The first bell yet to be rung, a thudding came from the back of Chamith with scream. Chamith went to the site and saw that Kamal one of his classmates was lying on the wet slippery floor. Kamal could not move neither his legs nor the rest of the body. Fortunately, the class teacher visited the class. Having seen all the students circled behind the class, she sensed that something unusual had happened. She arrived at the site and saw Kamal lying and screaming on the floor. She examined him carefully and consoled him that nothing serious had happened. She asked the classmates to lift him up and make him walk. Fortunately, Kamal was not severely injured except a small bruise on the thigh.

Read the following poem and answer the questions.

How beautiful is the rain!
After the dust and heat
In the broader and fiery street,
In the narrow lane,
How beautiful is the rain!

How it clatters along the roof,
Like a tramp of hoofs!
How it gushes and struggles it out
From the throat of overflowing spout!
Across the window pane
It pours and pours;
And swift and wide,
With the muddy tide,
Like a river down the gutter roars
The rain ,the welcome rain!

H.W. Longfellow

TEST 15

Read the text and answer the questions.

Cereal such as white rice, and corn lose considerable amount of their natural vitamin content during milling. The enrichment programme specifies amount of four B vitamin (thiamin, riboflavin, niacin and folic acid) and the mineral iron that manufacturers must add to the refined white flour and certain other milled products. At present, health experts are considering whether vitamin B 12 should be included as an enrichment nutrient. Enrichment helps protect people from developing the deficiency diseases associated with the lack of these nutrients. However, enrichment does not replace the Vitamin E, B-6, potassium, magnesium, several other micro nutrients, and fiber that were in naturally in the unrefined grains. This is the major reason dietitians and other nutrition experts promote regular consumption of whole –grain products such as whole wheat bread and brown rice.

Fortification involves the addition during manufacturing of one or more vitamins and other nutrients to a wide array of commonly eaten foods. The vitamins that are added may or may not be in the food naturally. For example, milk is often fortified with vitamin A and D, and many ready-to-eat cereals have additional vitamins baked into or sprayed on them before packaging. In the modern world fortification and enrichment of foods have improved vitamin intake of people. However some food manufacturers add to foods and beverages particularly flavored drinks, that would otherwise be considered "empty calories" items.

1) Say whether the following statement are true or false. Put ✓ or ✗ in front of the statement. (½ mark) a). During milling cereals lose all the vitamin content in them. ( )
   b). During milling cereals lose all the vitamin content in them. ( )
